Why it worked

01

The first line names a mistake the viewer is already making.

02

No product on screen until 0:11, after the problem lands.

03

One take, bathroom counter, no edit. Nothing to produce.

Three reasons, not seven tabs.

SAY THIS, WORD FOR WORD

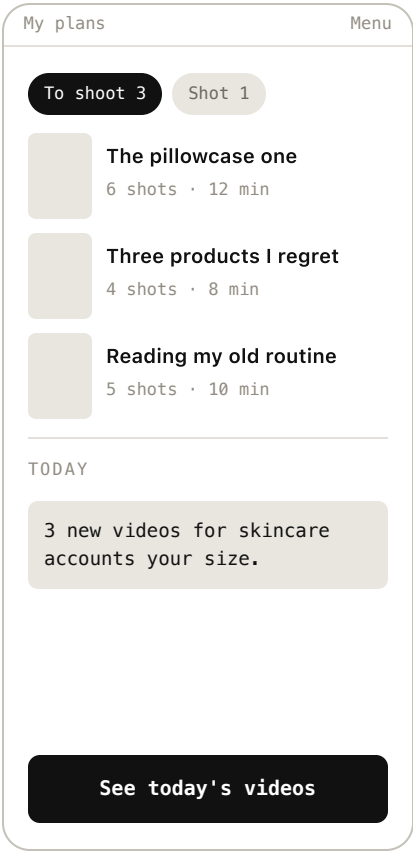

"You are not breaking out from your skincare. You are breaking out from this."

SHOT LIST

- ☐ 0:00 Face to camera, bathroom, no filter. Say the hook.
- ☐ 0:03 Cut to your pillowcase. Hold it up to the light.
- ☐ 0:06 Close on the fabric. Say how long since you changed it.
- ☐ 0:11 Now the product. First time it appears.

No trending sound. The hook is spoken, music buries it.

I shot it

Screens 03 and 06 carry the product. Everything else exists to get people to them.

03 Design rules

MOBILE WEB, NOT AN APP No install step between a link and the product. The drawer becomes a left rail on desktop.	TIKTOK GRAMMAR Full-bleed vertical cards, metadata over the image, actions on a right rail. Nothing new to learn.	VALUE BEFORE ACCOUNT Two questions and a working feed with no email. The wall sits at step 05, never earlier.
UNDER 30 SECONDS TO FIRST RECOMMENDATION Served from a precomputed catalog. Only the plan adaptation runs live.	THREE REASONS, NOT SEVEN TABS Depth is friction for someone who wants to film something today.	ONLY SHOOTABLE VIDEOS If a recommendation needs a crew, it should never have been recommended.

Draft wireframes, not final visual design. Greyboxes stand in for video; copy is written at final intent so it can be reviewed as a product decision.

Section markers use film production revision-stock colors, the convention for marking which document you are holding.
